Tom actively began his musical career in the early sixties during his high school days in Boston where he played guitar and sang with a folk group. In college, he put together a band in which he played rhythm guitar and again, tried his hand at singing. Turning down an offer to work as product manager at CBS Records upon graduation, Tom joined the world of advertising for a year. In 1971, however, he was back in the music business as assistant A&R Director at Epic and worked with Sly, The Dave Clark Five, Donovan and Bobbie Vinton. His first Epic signing was R.E.O. Speedwagon, leading to the post of Director of Talent Acquisition and in 1978 to the position of staff producer. Tom signed Ted Nugent to the label and co-produced the "Ted Nugent" album with Lew Futterman. His first solo production was "Mother's Finest," and since then, Tom has been busy producing groups he has signed to Epic (Ted Nugent, Cheap Trick, Mother's Finest, Molly Hatchet) with a stint as executive producer for "Jeff Beck Live with the Jan Hammer Group." His next project is Brownsville Station. Thus far, Tom Werman has produced four records that have achieved platinum status. We're certain that he'll add many more to the list!
